#2 DISCOVERY KIDS

You know when you take your shoes off and have to scratch your feet? Chances are you have fungus on your feet. While you're running around all day in your sneakers, your foot becomes warm and sweaty. That's right - toe cheese is dinner for fungi. As they bug around eating, they're also dying, breeding and pooping, which could irritate your skin, making you want to scratch it. Scratching feels good, but washing your feet regularly is better than allowing your foot to be a cafeteria for millions of fungi. To find out more yucky stuff, go to DiscoveryKids.com now.
